

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

SINCE Mrs. Swanson's return from her Western trip, details connected with the work of renovation now going on at the Executive Mansion have occupied her time and thoughts almost exclusively.

The mansion has been freshly painted, the color of the brick showing a pale grayish yellow that blends harmoniously with the tones of the Capitol and State Library buildings and renders white trimmings and green blinds effectively colonial in finish. All of the bed rooms in the mansion are to be repapered, and the small reception parlor on the first floor is to have its walls handsomely rehanging under the direction of Mrs. Swanson.

Having completed the work of selection and given her instructions to the decorators, Mrs. Swanson will leave Saturday for her country home, Edgemoor, in Pittsylvania county, which she will open for August, her servants having gone ahead to make ready for her. When she returns to Richmond in September, the painting and wall decorating will be finished, and she can put the mansion in order for the fall season.

Her visit to Denver and her subsequent trip through the West, especially Yellowstone Park, is being discussed by Mrs. Swanson with the keenest sense of enjoyment. In Denver, she and Governor Swanson were guests of Dr. W. W. Grant, a leading surgeon of the West and an Alabamian by nationality. Every available moment of the visit was turned to some delightful account, a dinner given by Mrs. Grant at the Denver Club, and another by Dr. Grant at the University Club, of that city, being among the social functions in honor of the chief executive of Virginia and his wife. Mrs. Swanson, in bidding her hosts adieu, assured her that never, even in the days of her girlhood, could she remember a period every moment of which had been filled with greater pleasure than that of her Denver visit.

NOT SUSPEND OPEN PULPIT

Bishop Whitaker Denies Petition of 30 Clergymen and 1,300 Communicants.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 23.—Replying to a petition from thirty clergymen and 1,300 communicants that he withhold the exercise of the power granted by the amendment of Canon 19, at the General Convention in Richmond, last fall, to permit persons other than Episcopal ministers to deliver addresses in churches of that denomination, Bishop Osi Whitaker yesterday refused to yield to the request.

The petition, based on the argument that the new law is at variance with the fundamental law as contained in the Ordinal, the preface to the Ordinal and the traditions of the Ordinal, and that such a practice will tend to create dissension within the church body, in his reply, Bishop Whitaker said:

"After the most candid and careful observation, I am fully persuaded that the amendment to Canon 19 is in no sense whatever an infringement upon the fundamental law of the church. It is in no way in violation of the provisions of the constitution, nor the requirements and exhortations of the Ordinal, nor the statements in the preface of the same, upon the established order of the church."

"The petitioners declare their solemn conviction that the amendment, as already applied, in very many cases is an infringement upon the fundamental law of the church, and that great harm has been done thereby in engendering distrust, confusion and causing unhappiness to many in our beloved church. I have sought to locate these 'very many' instances, but have been unable to do so. On the contrary, I have found but very few which may one have ever characterized as abuses. A part of these I know to be absolutely false; no such persons as had been described, had been licensed, no such utterance as had been reported had been made."

"I do not more deeply regret than I do the mental distress of some of our communicants. But I was never more certain of anything than that there is nothing in this amendment to justify such a state of mind."
